Trophy Rivers & Lakes

Lake Clark and it's tributaries are over 60 miles of cool clear water and the lake has depths of up to 900 feet and is the 2nd deepest lake in Alaska. It is unusual to have a lake of this size provide such remarkable high quality fishing, but Lake Clark is an exception. Numerous rivers pour fresh oxygenated water into the lake and combine with a rich nutrient base that help the fish grow impressively large. In the world of fishing this is an ideal habitat for Salmon, Northern Pike, Char, Artic Grayling as well as Lake Trout.

When to Come

June Fishing:

After a long winter the fish are ready to bite and are awaiting the millions of salmon fry headed to the ocean. The following fish take almost any fly: Rainbow Trout, Arctic Char, Grayling, Lake Trout, Dolly Varden, and prime for Northern Pike. June is a dry fly paradise. Red salmon and King Salmon are available toward the end of this month after June 20th. Halibut and other salt water species are available as well.

July Fishing:

This is a great month for the Salmon Species, King or Sockeye. Dry fly fishing is still excellent for Rainbow Trout, Grayling, Arctic Char, and Northern Pike. Pink Salmon becomes available during this month as well as salt water species such as Halibut.

August & September Fishing:

Salmon are in full spawning activity and the Rainbow Trout, Dolly Varden, and Arctic Char follow them feeding on the salmon eggs. This makes for easy fishing. The Silver Salmon are extremely acrobatic. In September, fish need to feed heavy for the coming winter - Rainbow Trout and other species are at their largest, making this an awesome time to collect trophy fish of any type such as a 8 pound Rainbow, which is not uncommon. These months are ideal for booking our Northwest Odyssey yacht for Salmon and salt water species.
